Success Education Colleges Leader Elected to ABHES Commission
Chief Compliance Officer Serjik Kesachekian Secures Leadership Role on National Accrediting Commission

WEST COVINA, Calif. — Success Education Colleges (SEC) is proud to announce that Serjik Kesachekian, Chief Compliance Officer of Success Education Colleges, has been elected to serve on the Accrediting Bureau of Health Education Schools (ABHES) Commission.

Kesachekian secured the position through a recent election process, receiving the highest number of votes among candidates and earning a seat on the Commission, where he will help support and advance the quality and integrity of healthcare education programs nationwide.

ABHES is a nationally recognized accrediting organization dedicated to promoting excellence and accountability in health education. Commissioners play an important role in shaping accreditation standards and helping ensure institutions continue to prepare students for successful careers in healthcare.

"Being selected to serve on the ABHES Commission is both an honor and a great responsibility," said Kesachekian. "I look forward to contributing to the continued advancement of healthcare education and supporting the mission of preparing future healthcare professionals for meaningful and impactful careers."

"Serjik's election to the ABHES Commission reflects the leadership, dedication, and commitment to educational excellence that he brings to our institution every day," said Mitchell Fuerst, President of Success Education Colleges. "We are incredibly proud of this achievement and look forward to seeing the positive impact his experience and perspective will bring to the future of healthcare education."

Kesachekian has remained committed to strengthening educational quality, student success initiatives, and institutional excellence and compliance throughout his leadership at Success Education Colleges. His appointment represents not only a significant professional achievement, but also a continued dedication to advancing healthcare education on a broader scale.
